

Holiday Gift Guide

Presents the Foodie in Your Life Will Eat Up

by Clint Hamblin

Are you looking for holiday gifts for your favorite foodie? Have no fear. Boston is a foodie paradise. From cooking classes to cookbooks written by some of the city's great chefs, if you're shopping for a food lover, take a look at these suggestions.

Cookbooks

Boston's nationally recognized Elephant Walk features an outstanding Cambodian menu and the corresponding cookbook written by Longteine De Monteiro and Katherine Neustadt features an outstanding assortment of very unusual and dramatic dishes. If your foodie likes exotic, this is a perfect gift.

The Summer Shack Cookbook by Boston's own Jasper White is a complete guide to shore food. You'll find lots of tips on cooking seafood and some great recipes. This is a must-have cookbook for the foodie who loves seafood.

Dessert Delivery

How about an incredible dessert from Finale Bakery, Boston's very own dessert destination for more than 10 years? You can order online and ship to friends and family across the country or stop in to Finale to place an order at their Park Plaza location. What's on the list? How about a Pumpkin Cheesecake and Dark Chocolate Decadence Cake or a Chocolate Bourbon Pecan Tart, Cherry Almond Tart or a Blueberry Cheesecake?

Build it yourself

Have you ever tasted a really good extra virgin olive oil? Whole Foods offers a variety of special oils that will please even the most discriminating foodie. How about a basket of oils, exotic herbs and seasonings? Dazzle your foodie with a special combination of essential cooking items.

Tea without Sympathy

A couple of gift certificates to Swan's Café Afternoon Tea at the Boston Park Plaza is a perfect holiday gift, and if you're lucky, perhaps you'll get invited to enjoy the great variety of teas and tea-inspired delicacies on the menu. Be sure to order the Tea Cured Salmon, a Swan's Café specialty.

Dining Antiques

At Devonia Antiques for Dining on Beacon Hill, you'll find all sorts of antique plates, salt and pepper shakers, ornate dishes or beautiful goblets. Every foodie wants the best set of dishes and table accessories to feature their gastronomical
